Reading Now For The Young

Last night the school board heard and informally approved a progress report by subcommittee of the citizens' committee which has been facing up to the fact that quite a number of kids get into high school without knowing how to read, and they aren't always dumb kids, either.

Mrs. Romayne Hill, who is in charge of remedial reading in high school presented the report, which contains the good news that the committee has concerned itself first with the lower grades, and recommends that first measures be taken there.

The school board, anticipating this recommendation, has just hired a remedial reading teacher for the primary schools for next year.

The report, the work of Mrs. Hill, Barbara Benedict and Jean McKenzie follows.

1. The objective of the Joint Sub-Committee on reading is a systematic, coordinated reading program district-wide, K through 12.

2. In the study to date, the Joint Sub-Committee has worked in the primary area only and plans to work additionally in the intermediate and high school areas in the fall of 1961. As a result of present study, the Joint Sub-Committee submits the following report:

a. We recognize that there are substantial efforts made in the district now to teach primary children according to their levels of maturity and ability. However, we are not complacent. We plan to make a thorough study of various systems of classroom organization, including ungraded primary, by which a child may progress according to his ability.

b. There has been much recent controversy concerning the teaching of reading, and numerous approaches to reading have their ardent proponents. Various systems have been developed, including: Gillingham, Science Research Assoc., Phono-Visual, Carden, Hay-Wingo, Spaulding, and Sister Caroline. We recommend that experienced and qualified people be invited to Carmel to give first hand reports and Edgar Bissantz was re-elected chairman of the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross for a second term this afternoon at the chapter's annual meeting. Before becoming president last year, Mr. Bissantz served on the Red Cross board of directors as fund campaign chairman for a year.

He has been actively associated with several other Carmel organizations since coming here to live ten years ago. Founder of La Causerie Francaise, he served as president of this French language group for four years. Mr. Bissantz also was secretary of the Carmel Music Society while on this organization's board of directors for a number of years. He is a member of the Carmel Rotary Club, and three years ago, with Mrs. Bissantz, was co-president of the Carmel High School P-TA unit.

Immediately before coming to Carmel, Edgar Bissantz was a master plan architect for the San Francisco city planning commission for three years, occupied with rezoning and shoreline planning among other projects. Prior to this he was associated with the Federal Public Housing Authority in San Francisco.

He practised architecture in Los Angeles after graduating from Cornell University, Ithaca, New York. Born in Wichita, Kansas, Mr. Bissantz came with his parents to live in Pasadena as a boy and attended Harvard Military School in Los Angeles before going East to college.

An accomplished photographer, Mr. Bissantz has developed this interest on seven European visits and plans to devote even more time to photography. Color slides of his travels are familiar to Carmelites who have attended showings of his work. He also lectures on aspects of present day life and the political problems of Europe.

Mr. Bissantz has just moved into the house he designed in Hatton Fields, after living elsewhere for a year following his return from his latest year of travel in Europe.

He visited international headquarters of the Red Cross in Geneva on this trip and sent back accounts of his experiences to the local Red Cross chapter. He also investigated files at headquarters at the request of local residents who wished further information on relatives or friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Bissantz have one daughter, Joan Willicombe, who graduated from Carmel High School last week. She will enter Stanford University in September.

Today, Mr. Bissantz was present at the annual Red Cross chapter meeting. Last year he was elected president while still abroad.

Yates Protests $101,300 Hike In New Budget

Last night the school board adopted a preliminary budget for 1961-62 that George Yates doesn't like:

"We can't act on a budget we haven't studied," he objected. Somebody had failed to send out advance copies of Assistant School Superintendent Wayne Greenfield's budget to board members.

But mostly Board Member George Yates objected to the total of $1,565,600 to operate the school system for next year, an increase of $101,300 over the present budget.

"This budget uses up every cent of the newly assessed valuation," Yates said. The people voted the over-ride tax before the county set about jacking up the assessed valuation, he pointed out. "If we charge the same tax rate as before, they'll be having in effect an increase in tax."

"This is practically the same budget we presented on May 15," Greenfield said. Board Member Mrs. Adrian Bennett observed that they had no choice in the matter. "We have to adopt it." The preliminary budget has to be in the hands of the county superintendent of schools before July 1. It comes back to the board and there is time for revision up until adoption in August, Greenfield explained.

Yates moved for adoption, "provided that it is thoroughly understood there will be a thorough rehash before final adoption."

But Yates won't be on hand for

Planners Formulate Policy To Eliminate Signs On Trees

Planning commissioners formulated a policy for group signs at the entrances to courtyards and store complexes in the business district during their study session yesterday afternoon. This was an outgrowth of two requests, one for an informational-directional signboard at Carmel Plaza, the other an application for a sign to be attached to a tree at the entrance to the Court of the Golden Bough, for Kim's Korean Imports and Arts.

Vice chairman Fred Keeble, who presided in the absence of Chairman Herbert Blanks, said that the commission's design review committee was disturbed at the number of signs on the tree on Ocean Avenue in front of the Golden Bough Court.

"The tree is becoming a signpost," he declared. "If we allow this to continue an undesirable state will develop throughout the town. It is not the type of thing we want in front of courts."

As a result of this possible condition, Mr. Keeble continued, the design review committee had formulated a policy, in a report, that all businesses in a courtyard or com-

Planning Commission C-1-L Zone Hearing Wednesday Afternoon

Public hearings on amending the general plan and four proposed ordinances will be held by the planning commission on Wednesday afternoon starting at 4:00 o'clock in City Hall.

Commissioners will hear public opinion on extending the C-1-L (hotel, motel) zone beyond its present location on each side of Ocean Avenue, Monte Verde to Casanova Streets, to include the entire block enclosed by Ocean, Junipero, Torres and Sixth; north halves of the blocks fronting on Torres, Sixth to Third; approximately one-third of the blocks fronting on Third, on both sides of Junipero Street, continuing to San Carlos; the entire block bounded by Third, Mission, Fourth and San Carlos; La Playa Hotel site. These areas are the north and east perimeter of the business district, except for La Playa which is in the residence one.

Potential C-1-L zoning, to be decided in the future, will be included in the public hearing for the half block above Eighth on the west side of Junipero Street; two half blocks fronting on San Carlos above Eighth.

Ordinance hearings will include the following amendments: eliminate use permit procedures in the granting and approval for floodlighting; technical corrections to the official city zoning map; ten days notice for public hearings instead of the five now required; zoning of all city-owned lands as either natural or improved recreation areas.

Argentine Rebels Sack Monterey Presidio, Bag Drunk Paisano, In 1818

By J. Wm. MacLennan

Shortly after dawn on the morning of November 22, in the year 1818, Captain Hypolite de Bouchard, flying the flag of the rebel government at Buenos Aires, sailed into Monterey Bay, in command of the frigate Argentina and the brig Santa Rosa. A light fog covered sea and land. Drawing close to the shore, but out of reach of any land battery, he ordered anchors dropped and awaited clearer skies. The peace of the bay was broken only by the shrill cries of the gulls crossing and recrossing the bay.

Early in the afternoon the fog slowly lifted, revealing a few huts near the beach, and, further back, beside an estero, the Presidio of Monterey loomed up, covering an area of about 100 yards square. Its adobe wall, ten feet high, enclosed storehouses, homes, barracks, and a chapel. The flag of Spain fluttered in the breeze above the Presidio, and the cross of Christ on the chapel tower shone resplendent in the afternoon sunshine. Vincente de Sola, Gobernador of Alta California was in command.

Bouchard discharged a cannon to attract the attention of the fort and dispatched a boat ashore with a demand for immediate surrender. When Sola refused, Bouchard decided to wait until the next day before landing in force believing that Sola would be compelled by the garrison to surrender as most of the soldiers were Mexicans and anxious, he thought, to throw off the yoke of Spain.

Sola had been expecting trouble as most of Spain's American colonies were in revolt. This expectation was confirmed on October 10, when he learned that a Captain Bouchard in command of the Argentina had put into Honolulu and was planning to overthrow the Spanish authority in Alta California and set up a republic. In addition, he learned, that Bouchard

Building Inspector Floyd Adams has a set of plans he can't decipher. All written specifications are in Chinese calligraphy characters, "And I can't read Chinese," he explains.

However, the plans for a Chinese restaurant on the west side of Mission Street between Ocean and Seventh Avenues in the building formerly occupied by the Bank of America will come before the planning commission next week. Commissioner George Willox, an architect, decided drawings were the same in any language, deciphered what was what and annotated the plans in English for Mr. Adams.

The plans were prepared by Architect Hai-Tao Chu, Chinese Imperial Decorator, associated with

League Standings

Pilot Market	4	0

San Carlos Realty	3	1
Sport Shop	1	3
Wilder & Jones	1	4
Turner & McEldowney	0	3

Art Carpenter's Pilot Market nine remains undefeated in second-half Little League play as it edged Wilder & Jones, 3 to 1, in last Friday's league play. Although the grocers managed only two hits off the slants of Hart Silverie and Joe Pistulka, they capitalized on seven walks and two hit batters to get the winning markers. Ronnie Parsons and Chuck Pearson were the only Pilot batters to hit safely. Ed Kawanankea was the top hitter in the game, getting three singles in three official trips to the plate.

San Carlos Realty won a pair to keep in a deadlock with Boys' Town for the runner-up spot. The first-half champs beat the Sport Shop, 11 to 3, with Larry Little and Steve King teaming up to throw a three-hitter at the Sports. King also hit a home run to share batting honors with Tony Laiolo who also connected for a round-tripper. Gary Kearns and Lou Shone shared the pitching chores for Clayton Neill's Sports, giving up seven hits and handing out five walks.

Newt Goodrich's Boys' Town crew kept within hailing distance of first place by downing the Sport Shop, 4 to 3, and clipping Turner & McEldowney, 14 to 1. The clothiers had on their hitting clothes against Turner & McEldowney, clubbing 14 safe blows, one a grand slam homer by Richard Oleson. Goodrich's lads had their hands full against Sport Shop, sitting on a precarious one-run lead from the third inning on. After spotting the clothiers three runs in the first inning, the Sports bounced back with three runs of their own in the third heat. Mel Grimes, Lou Shone, and Randy Newman each picked up two hits to lead the Sport Shop hitters while Gerald Pullen and Mark Snopkowski topped the Boys' Town swingers. Jackie Campbell and Erk Danysh collaborated to pitch the win for Boys' Town while Greg Campbell and Lou Shone toiled on the mound for the Sports.

Sport Shop took a 12-2 decision from Wilder & Jones, piling up six runs in the first frame to put the game out of reach. Randy Newman and Gary Kearns pitched the win for the Sports with Ed Kawanankoa absorbing the loss for the plumbers. Lou Shone continued his hot hitting streak for Sport Shop, clubbing a double and single in four chances while Rollie Champe hit a double and scoring three runs for the winners. Bradley Jones, plumber centerfielder, was the top clubber for the losers, getting a double and single in three trips to the plate.

Tonight's Little League slate has Turner & McEldowney tangling with Wilder & Jones; Friday night, a crucial battle between Boys' Town and San Carlos; and Monday Pilot Market goes against Turner & McEldowney.

Little League officials are now seeking contributions from parents and fans to help in the promotion of the LL program. Checks made out to the Carmel Little League will be accepted by any LL official or team manager and contributors will be voting members of the LL Association.

CIRCLING THE BASES

Bright spot in the Nebraska State League play during the past week was Henry Overin's sensational 13-inning no-hitter as his Wayne club defeated West Point, 1 to 0. The crafty Carmel left-hander went the route for Wayne, striking out 13 and giving up two walks. . . . Two Carmel Merchant softballers are showing the way to the hitters in the Pacific Grove Recreation League. Jack McGaughey, clever-fielding first-baseman, is stroking a torrid .476 while catcher Paul Ricketson has been menacing the pitchers with a .385 average. The Merchants are 1-2 in second-half standings and the task of catching the high-flying Peninsula Paint nine appears to be plenty rocky. With Big Jim Morton pitching better than ever, the Paints are firmly established at the top of the league. Carmel's hurling duo of Gene Zinnani and Phil Ramirez has notched four victories while losing four in the A-division circuit. . . . Plenty of softball action on tap for Carmel Youth Center members this summer with three leagues in the hopper. The regular YC Intramural League gets underway tonight with games scheduled for 7:00 and 7:15. This is strictly a fun league with Director Jack Giles doing the pitching for all teams and giving a dubious star award for all players who strike out against his tricky spinners. Friday night at the Jacks Park diamond in Monterey, the Youth Center's socko team starts its league action. Next Tuesday evening at 7:00 o'clock co-educational softball games will highlight the action at Sunset Field. With five boys and four girls on each team, this could develop into a junior-grade Abalone League. . . . After a week's rest from league action, Carmel's Babe Ruth nine resumes action this Saturday when it tangles with the Monterey Central Labor nine in a one o'clock game at the Pacific Grove softball diamond. This game was originally scheduled for the Carmel High diamond, but league directors condemned the Carmel field as unsafe and moved the play to Pacific Grove. The Carmel lads have a tough task ahead of them in Saturday's clash, meeting a team which has won 22 straight Babe Ruth League games. The Central Labor nine was unbeaten during the second-half of the 1959 season, was undefeated in 1960, and has not lost a game this season. . . . The annual Little League hegira to Candlestick Park is slated for July 9 with mothers, fathers, brothers, and sisters invited to take the bus trip. The San Francisco Giants are hosting the St. Louis Cardinals on this date and the tickets for the trip to San Francisco's Candlestick Park are going for $6.50 per person. (This includes bus transportation and a reserved seat for the game.) Tickets may be secured from any Little League official and the team managers. Please contact a league official or manager by this weekend.

However, playoffs among the first four teams will start this Saturday with championship playoff slated for July 1. Saturday's 2:00 o'clock game matches Village Inn and Carmel Plaza with Little Sparrows and Derek Rayne taking the field at 12:00.

John Dudley and Jeff Zimmerman throwing four-hit ball, it was an easy road for the champs to notch their fifth victory of the season. Besides pitching a fine game, Dudley also led all the hitters with three blows in four chances.

The Derek Rayne nine won a place in the league playoffs by clipping the Rockets, 15 to 10, with Hugh Steele and Mike Kastro providing the bat power. Steele hit three singles and scored three times while Kastro drove in three runs with a whistling triple. Pete Hahn led the Rocket hitters with three doubles in four trips to the plate.

Although beaten by Ewell Cole's Nikko's club, the Carmel Plaza finished the season with a 3-3 record and will get a chance for more action in the playoffs. Nikko's upset the Plaza, 13 to 8, last Saturday with Bob Calcagno and Mike Whitcomb leading the way. Although they gave up nine hits over the six-inning route, Calcagno and Whitcomb were effective in the tight spots and hung on for the victory. Doug Swanson and Carl Noto each stroked doubles to lead the Plaza hitters.

SPORT SHOP CARDS LEAD PONY LEAGUE

League Standings

Sport Shop	2	0

Builders Supply	2	1
Carmel Valley	1	1
Toy Shop	1	2
Navy School	0	3

After a week's play in the newly-formed Carmel Pony League, Bob Baugh's Sport Shop Cardinals have compiled a 2-0 record to take over as the league leader. The Cards have parlayed the shutout pitching of George Dubets and Tim Mosolf with the strong hitting of Ronnie Berry, Craig Olsen, Randy Mapstead, and Craig Harder to clip the Top Shop Braves, 7 to 0, and blank the Navy School, 5 to 0.

Howard Baxter and Bill Woolsey guided their Jade Tree Motel Giants to a convincing win over the Navy School as Lawson Little and Matt Little teamed up to pitch the win. Greg Jones, lanky Giant third-sacker, connected for three solid base hits to lead the winners at the plate.

Managers Van King and Don Canham saw their Builders Supply Dodgers clip the Braves and the Navy, but suffered through their loss to the Carmel Valley Broncos. Richard Wise and Howdy King have pitched steady ball for the Dodgers while notching the two victories while the strong hitting of Jerry Olson, Pete Crane, and King has given the Builders good power.

The Jack Miller-Howard Bucquet managerial combine mentored the Toy Shop Braves to a win over the Valley Broncos but dropped a pair to the Cardinals and Dodgers. Robin Smith, Steve Trapkus, Jack Mahoney, Clint Macy, and Maynard Peterson are leading the Toy Shop hitters with Smith carrying most of the pitching load.

Tonight's Pony League action matches Valley Broncos against the Navy; Friday has the Giants versus the Dodgers; Saturday morning it's the Braves and Giants; and Monday the Cardinals go against the Valley Broncos. All games at Carmel High School diamond.

Carmel, Calif.
June 19, 1961

Editor of the Pine Cone:

There is a stretch of land in California, a wilderness of extraordinary beauty called: The Big Sur Country. It is known to most Californians, to many Americans, and to foreigners. A great Californian poet has drawn much inspiration from this part of our State. Our people come here to rest and refresh their minds and hearts in order to enter again into the highly mechanized city life with its pressure and tension.

Is it not of great importance, then, to preserve this stretch of land where it is possible to relax and enjoy the natural beauty of such a rare wilderness?

Commercialism is necessary and has its place. But often, by short-sighted vision, it finds its way there, where it should not and must not be.

There is a petition to allow another commercial center in the Big Sur Country in the very scenic part of Burns Creek about two miles North of Hot Springs Lodge.

To most of the residents and visitors this seems most unnecessary to say the least.

We must guard and protect this Big Sur Land, if we want to keep it. New commercial centers have a way of encouraging other centers and in time, we lose more and more those havens of rest and recuperation which are so needed in a civilization highly geared to speed and competition.

Anyone concerned about this matter can write to: Monterey County Planning Commission, Court House, Salinas.

Write before June 27. Let us preserve the Big Sur Land.

Thanking the Editor of Pine Cone,

Sincerely,

had secured another ship, the brig Santa Rosa, and had recruited more men; chiefly English and American beachcombers, Chinese, Malayans, and Hawaiians, adding thirty or more Hawaiian women. Possibly he planned to settle some of his crew in California. But when over a month passed, and Bouchard did not appear, Sola was inclined to believe that his information was false.

There was little, however, he could do to defend Alta California; not a single Spanish war vessel within a thousand miles. Besides this, the Californians were few in number, about 3000, and the number of troops he could depend on was meager. He might get a little help from Santa Barbara where 60 soldiers were stationed. Further south was La Cuidad de Nuestra Senora de los Angeles with a population of only one hundred settlers. To the north a few men at the San Francisco Presidio.

On sighting Bouchard's ships in the bay Sola sent out in all directions for help and ordered the Presidio evacuated. Sergeant Vallejo, however, insisted on staying a while, hoping to get a few shots at the enemy before retiring. The evacuation was carried out successfully that night. The older men and women, the babies and their Indian nurses, and the sick, were hurriedly crowded onto carretas, crude ox-carts made entirely of wood and rawhide, with cross-sections of sycamore trees for wheels. On the carretas were also packed as much clothing and food as possible, for the San Antonio Mission, their destination, was poor and every available able-bodied man, except a few with Vallejo, accompanied the women and children as far as the Salinas River. There they took up a position to wait for reinforcements before facing Bouchard.

In the morning Bouchard decided to land in force. He had received no message from Sola and the only evidence of life on shore that he could see was a few horsemen near the presidio. He ordered the Santa Rosa to draw closer to shore to protect the landing to be made west of the estero below a pine and chaparral covered ridge. As the brig was about to anchor the roar of Vallejo's cannon shattered the peace of the morning, smoke rose from the shore directly ahead of the brig, and it was hit several times before it could withdraw out of range.

Bouchard immediately mustered on the deck of the Argentina a hundred marines, and about 40 Hawaiians who preferred to fight unencumbered by clothing. A landing was made below the Presidio, near the estero, where there was no shrubbery to mask a battery. Then, the Hawaiians, racing ahead to the huts near the beach, pushed aside the cowhides serving as doors, and peered in. The huts were deserted. Meantime, the Marines were advancing slowly toward the Presidio, firing occasionally. Soon, when there were no answering shots, they hurried ahead, pushed open the gates, and entered. The Presidio, too, was deserted save for a Mexican named Molina, who had lingered too long about a wine keg and was too drunk to get away.

Bouchard established his headquarters at the Presidio, leaving a small detachment at the beach to guard the small boats. He still hoped that Sola's troops would join him, but days passed; no Californians appeared save for a few mounted scouts in the distance, too fleet to be captured.

The Hawaiian women came ashore and helped ransack the homes and warehouses. Abundance of wine and plenty of aguardiente, a native brandy, very powerful, was found; cattle were rounded up and butchered. Thus with the aid of the Hawaiian women, who undoubtedly knew how to hula, Monterey must have witnessed an orgie unparalleled in her history.

When a week had passed with no message from Sola, Bouchard decided to leave Monterey. The Presidio was given over to pillage, and then set on fire, sparing only the chapel. A strong breeze came up and the fire raced up the slope and into the pine forest above. And as the Argentina and the Santa Rosa drew out of the harbor bound for the Santa Barbara Presidio, huge columns of smoke like thundercaps covered the amphitheater about the bay.

Jose de la Guerra, Comandante of the Presidio of Santa Barbara and Protector of La Cuidad de Los Angeles had dispatched 30 men to aid Sola under Sergeant Ortega. They arrived too late to help Sola and immediately hurried back to Santa Barbara. Jose de la Guerra also made preparations to meet any attack by Bouchard. He was determined to hold the Presidio and to defend the Mission though he had only 60 regular troops, including those with Ortega, and sixty others, on the sick or retired lists. The women and children and sick were sent to the Santa Ynez Mission, by way of Gaviota Pass, thirty miles up the coast. Sergeant Carrillo, the grand uncle of Leo Carrillo, accompanied them. They were instructed to hold the pass in order to defend Santa Ynez Mission, but, if Bouchard sailed past down the coast to hurry back to Santa Barbara.

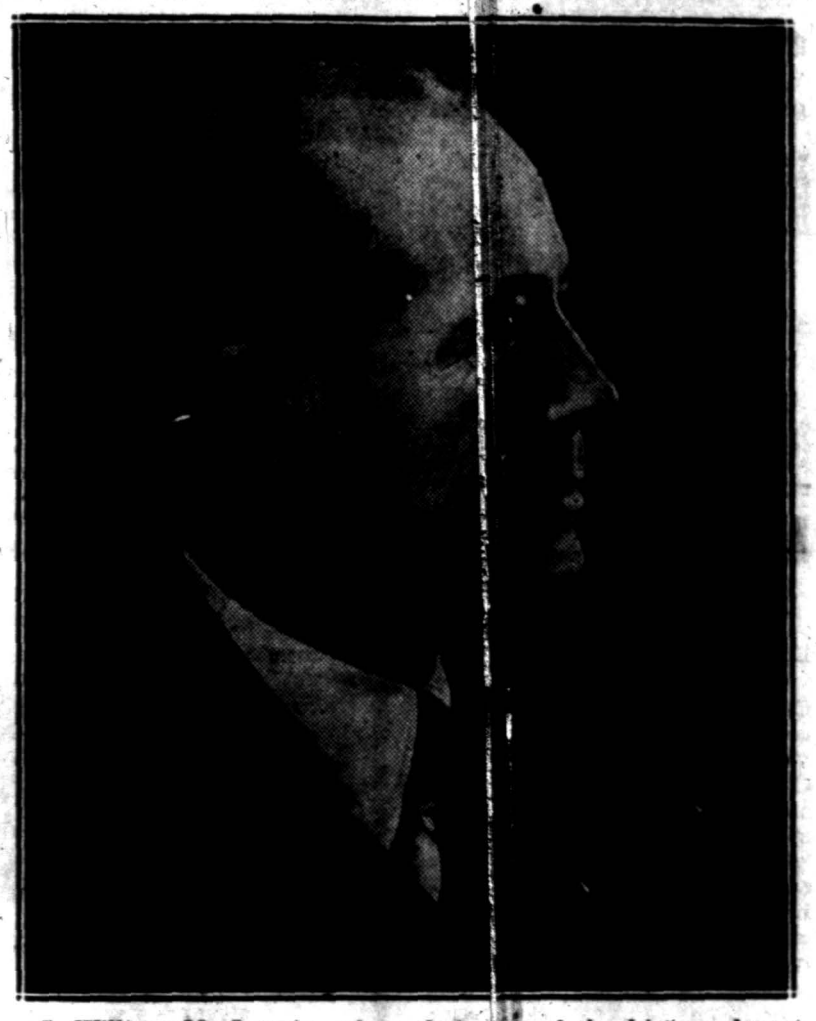

But Bouchard instead of going directly to Santa Barbara landed a detachment at El Refugio Rancho, about 20 miles north of the presidio. While some of the men captured and butchered cattle to supply the ships with fresh meat, the rest hurried on to the ranch buildings, a half a mile or more back from the beach. There they looted the buildings, set them on fire, and finding some splendid palomino horses grazing near the buildings, cut their throats. But on their way back some of the men were intercepted by Sergeant Carrillo, and three of them were captured.

The attack on Santa Barbara never came. A storm suddenly swept the coast. Bouchard had to seek refuge in the lee of Santa Cruz Island, thirty miles out. When the storm continued for several days and after the surf remained too tempestuous to make a safe landing with cannon, Bouchard decided to give up his attempt to overthrow the Spanish government in Alta California. He remembered, however, his three men captured by Carrillo and sent a boat ashore with a message offering to leave California if De la Guerra would agree to exchange prisoners.

De la Guerra readily agreed, but was angry when he learned that the exchange meant three for one; the one being Molina taken in the Monterey Presidio.

Bouchard made one more landing before leaving Alta California, at Mission San Juan Capistrano, where he got little but some cattle. The Padres had already carried their valuables to Pala Mission and had sent their wine supply there under the protection of their Christian Indians. When the Indians were slow in arriving at Pala Mission, the padres sent two of their members to find out what had happened to the Indians. They were found asleep about some half empty kegs.

Thus ended the first invasion of California in historic times. The Mexican troops had remained loyal to their rulers. The government officials and the Padres had informed them that Bouchard and his men were pirates bent on plundering and carrying off the women. The result; no bloodshed, the burning of Monterey Presidio and the buildings at Rancho del Refugio, and the loss of considerable cattle, and of wine, especially by the Padres at San Juan Capistrano Mission. Alta California remained under the authority of Spain until 1832, when Mexico won her independence and Alta California became a Mexican province.

Louis Stellman

Louis John Stellman, journalist, author, historian and photographer, who came to live in Carmel in 1947, died on Tuesday in his home on Santa Fe Street near Ocean Avenue. He was 84 years old.

Mr. Stellman was born in Baltimore, Maryland, on January 6, 1877. He came with his parents to Southern California as a youth and began his journalistic career as a reporter for the Los Angeles Morning Herald. In 1900 he moved to San Francisco, where he wrote for the Daily News, later for the Morning Call and Bulletin, also feature articles for the Chronicle's Sunday supplement.

Just prior to the fire and earthquake of 1906, Mr. Stellman resigned as west coast manager of Newspaper Enterprises Association. He had sold his home and was living in a hotel at the time of the catastrophe. He immediately became associated with the Berkeley Gazette and covered events subsequent to the disaster for this paper. Later the photographs he took at the time were published with captions from his poems by Paul Elder with the title, The Vanished Ruin Era.

As a result of his newspaper work, Mr. Stellman became a member of the Late Watch, an association of active news writers at the time of the fire and earthquake, which meets each year on the anniversary of the event at the San Francisco Press Club.

In 1915, Mr. Stellman published A Dream Worth Building, a book on the San Francisco Pan-Pacific International Exposition illustrated with his pictures, the first color photographs published on the coast.

Following World War I, he was commissioned by the San Francisco Bulletin to write, in serial form, an account of the historical development of San Francisco. This was published in book form under the title, Port O' Gold.

In 1954, Louis Stellman published a biography of Sam Brannan, San Francisco pioneer. Another book he wrote, Mother Lode, was prescribed for school reading.

Mr. Stellman was a frequent Carmel visitor following the earthquake of 1906 and numbered among his Carmel friends the group of artists and writers who settled here at that time. Fourteen years ago he settled here permanently with his wife, Edith, who died following an automobile accident here in 1957.

He was an honorary member of the Union Press Club of San Francisco and of the Writer's Club of London, England. In Carmel, he belonged to the Padre Trails Camera Club.

Survivors are a nephew, Carl Kinney of Oberlin, Ohio, and two nieces in the East.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 o'clock in the Mission Mortuary Chapel with the Reverend James R. Spaid pastor of St. Timothy's Lutheran Church, Monterey, officiating. Private inurnment will be in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, Pacific Grove.

Committee Proposes Overhaul Of Primary Reading Teaching

demonstrations of such systems. Information provided by these experts, together with other information, will be used to evaluate the various possible approaches, and to form the basis for a recommendation as to the method or combination of methods best suited to this district.

c. The Joint Sub-Committee recommends that encouragement be given to, and procedures be established for, periodic meetings of teachers district-wide, both horizontal and vertical.

d. We recommend that the Board of Education look into the library procedures and facilities in the district, with the ultimate goal being a cultural center in each physical plant.

e. We applaud the action taken to obtain a remedial teacher, and we recommend that a fair portion of his time be devoted to the primary grades since we feel this to be a crucial area.

3. It is requested that an appropriate amount be budgeted to carry out these studies. At present we estimate that the required amount will be approximately $2,000.00.

4. We appreciate the opportunity to make this joint report to the Board and plan to further our study in the fall.

plex should use a signboard on a standard at any entrance. Total area of the signboard to be four by four feet. On this background should be placed the individual businesses' identification signs with lettering a maximum size of one square foot. No signs should be placed on trees. Each identification should have its individual character, if desired, thus providing variety in color and lettering. The signs would be approved as a whole and not individually. Formal action on the policy will be taken at a regular meeting, then recommended to the city council for approval.

The informational-directional sign for the businesses on the lower floor of Carmel Plaza was of the type approved by the design review committee and served as a guide in formulating their signboard policy. Lettering for each business is less than the maximum requirement suggested by the committee yesterday, Mr. Keeble observed.

Commissioner Florence Josselyn remarked that the signboard policy "was a wonderful idea" and pointed out that more and more walkways are being developed in the business district. "This means more and more signs," she concluded.

Next week planning commissioners will make a recommendation on Mission Ranch rezoning, at the request of the county planning commission. They will also hear the land use committee report on bulk control for business district buildings. Yesterday, Commissioners Josselyn and George Willox, members of this committee, indicated they think the existing ordiance, which controls height, street frontage, landscaping, parking and architecture, prevented any oversize development and provided bulk control for business district buildings. The commission had been requested to study bulk control measures by the city council.

Witnesses To Gather At King City In July Convention

Watchtower officials have selected the Salinas Valley Fair Auditorium in King City as the location for the next circuit assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses in California Circuit No. 11, it was announced by Henry Nordstrom, presiding minister of the Monterey Congregation. Over 1,500 delegates from the 19 congregations between San Jose and Atascadero are expected to attend the July 21-23 event. The Witnesses last met there for a similar gathering in June of 1959.

An organizational meeting, presided over by circuit supervisor Vasil Sekela, Jr. and convention manager Clair Alvarez, was held in San Jose June 5, where arrangements were made to set up the more than 20 departments needed to assure an efficient and enjoyable gathering. William Lange attended from Carmel. A number of Witnesses from this area will help man these departments without charge.

The theme of the convention, Walk in the Name of Jehovah Forever, will be featured in each day's sessions, which begin at 6:43 o'clock Friday evening and conclude at 6:00 o'clock Sunday evening, according to Mr. Nordstrom. He pointed out that such assemblies are held semi-annually to advance Christian Bible education. The morning, afternoon, and evening programs will include Bible talks, discussions and demonstrations to better equip the delegates in carrying out their ministry.

Key speaker for the conclave, West Coast District Supervisor Lester M. Dugan, will deliver the special free public Bible address, The Twentieth Century in Bible Prophecy, at 3:00 o'clock Sunday.

Sandor Salgo Here For Bach Festival Chorus Rehearsals, New Soloist, Old Favorites Will Participate

With Bach Festival conductor-music director Sandor Salgo here this week to review chorus rehearsals and consult with Festival Headquarters, final plans for the twenty-fourth annual Bach Festival are virtually complete.

The 45-voice Carmel Chorus has been rehearsing weekly since early Spring under assistant choral director Angie Machado in preparation for next month's Festival performances of the Bach Mass in B Minor. The remaining rehearsals until the Festival opens July 14 will be handled by Maestro Salgo and his wife, Priscilla Salgo; Mrs. Salgo will also supervise rehearsals of the Festival Chorale. Miss Machado, a mainstay of the Festival for the past ten years, will take leave of absence this season in order to participate in summer music workshops at the University of Colorado and Aspen.

The 1961 Festival, with an extended ten-day program, will introduce several outstanding new artists, as well as present performers who have distinguished themselves in previous Festivals.

Robert Donington, one of the finest virtuosi of the viol, will come from England for his initial Festival appearances. Mr. Donington is scheduled to present a morning lecture-recital on Tuesday, July 18, and will also appear as a soloist in one of the evening programs.

The widely-praised young American pianist, Joanna Hodges, will make an exclusive Festival appearance in solo recital Wednesday morning, July 19, with a program of keyboard music by Bach, Mozart, Handel and Haydn.

Two of the most distinguished additions to the 1961 Festival roster are pianist Adolph Baller and cellist Gabor Rejto, each of whom has performed here previously in concert and as members of the famed Alma Trio. Mr. Baller, currently a faculty head at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, will be heard in a Mozart concerto on Festival opening night. Mr. Rejto, one of the most brilliant pupils of Pablo Casals, will present a solo recital Friday morning, July 21, and will also be a soloist on the concert program for Saturday night, July 22.

Vocal solists participating in the Festival for the first time include baritone McHenry Boatwright, who recently returned from a highly successful tour of South America and Japan, and Brunetta Mazzolini, who has won wide acclaim for her performances under such leading conductors as Bruno Walter. Both will be soloists in the B Minor Mass; Mr. Boatwright will also present a solo recital Wednesday afternoon at Sunset Auditorium.

Other featured soloists in the B Minor Mass and in various chorales during the Festival will be the brilliant San Francisco mezzo-soprano, Margot Blum; contralto Florine Hemmings, a guest soloist with leading West Coast symphonies and opera companies; basso Thomas Paul, who first participated in the Festival as a member of the chorus and now studies at the Juilliard School of Music in New York; and tenor James Schwabacher, veteran Festival performer and a leading Bach interpreter. Mr. Schwabacher will also be heard in recital on Friday afternoon, July 21.

Mme. Alice Ehlers, world-famed harpsichordist who first performed at the Bach Festival in 1931 and has remained one of its favorite artists, will present lecture-recitals on both Saturday mornings, July 15 and 22, and will also be a featured soloist in the opening Friday night concert.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

It may be that this is beach weather and not movies weather, but as of the first of this month we have a fresh supply of our Canadian films and it seems a shame not to use them. We also have as a permanent thing a film called the Year of Challenge which was done in 1958 by Pan American Airways. It runs almost 30 minutes, is black and white, and is a news review covering the main happenings of the year. We ran it here in the library to get an idea of what it covered and it was very interesting.

Just to cheer you, we have a new book on thermonuclear war by Herman Kahn. Mr. Kahn has served in the physics divisions of the Rand Corporation for several years and has been giving a series of lectures called the "Kahn briefings" which discuss from the scientific viewpoint the possibility of total nuclear war, and what it means to the civilian population of this country. He says that the Communist rulers are not soft hearted humanitarians and the sooner we face up to this fact and begin to plan realistically, the better for us. And this brings us rather bitterly to a recent civilian defense practice during which we were told to tune in Conelrad and we did, only to hear three speeches, but nothing of a practical nature at all, after which we wondered why we bothered. There must be more to civilian participation than that. Read On Thermonuclear War by Herman Kahn and find out what a practical scientist thinks about the problem.

Back in the days when wars were more exciting and smaller, the name of Richard Harding Davis was as familiar as that of the president, for it was he who first made the war correspondent a figure of glamour and excitement. Gerald Langford who wrote Alias O. Henry has done a new biography entitled The Richard Harding Davis Years. Because Richard Davis and his mother Rebecca were very close, this is almost as much a biography of the one as of the other. This is a sympathetic biography, illustrated with photographs.

An amazing book is The Draw Anything Book by Arthur Zaidenberg. The arrangement is alphabetical by word, but unlike a dictionary, it has drawings instead of definitions. They are line drawings, generally several for each word. Most of the drawings are the quick sketch sort of thing, but this book can be of great value to local artists, especially cartoonists who want to know such things as how a hippopotamus looks with his mouth open or the flying stance of Pegasus.

It seems we can never get enough dog books to satisfy all the problems of a village of dog fanciers, but we try. Charles Leedham has a new book called Care of the Dog. Surprisingly enough, the author is not a veterinarian, but is a dog fancier himself and writes of dogs and their care with level headed kindliness. There are few pictures, but there is a good index, and of the two the index is more important.

New also with us this week is Resistance, Rebellion, and Death by Albert Camus, who died last year at the age of 47, and at the height of his literary power. The translation of this book was done by Justin O'Brien.

Here we are at the end of the space, and no mention of the beautiful new Illustrated History of France by Andre Maurois. And ten new novels. And . . .

In Carmel They All But Vote

By Marie Rowland, Animal Reporter

Watchdogs? They don't need be dogs at all.

The purebred Siamese Blue Points named Mitu and Thai who live with Loreto Candy in the Windfall Cottage at Dolores and Tenth Streets are a couple of jungle-alert champions guaranteed to challenge any marauders with malicious intent.

Blue Points are an Happenstance and are quite rare in the Siamese cat families, according to Candy. Full sisters, though nine months apart, Tai and Mitu get along famously. While Candy is at her office all day they have full run not only of the cottage but a completely enclosed garden area 30 by 100 feet large. In the center is a large oak tree for them to climb. The wire and wood enclosure which Candy explains cost her the price of about a dozen good new suits came only after she had lost three valuable and much-loved Siamese cats to street traffic. Now she takes no chances and feels her cats are possibly the happiest Siamese to be found outside a jungle.

Each of the two cats has a particular talent. Thai is the alarm clock. At 5:45 in the morning, if Candy isn't up, Thai sets up an insistent jungle yowl. "And she doesn't let up until I'm up," says Candy.

The daylight saving has thrown Thai off a little, which means that Candy actually could now sleep until 6:45 because Thai goes by the sun, not man-made laws.

About those potential marauders? Thai usually gives the alert and then disappears under the nearest couch to hide. It is Mitu who now makes shine her talent. She goes forth fearlessly to investigate and ready to do battle. It has been said that a full-grown bear will flee the attack of a jungle Siamese cat.

But do not fear should you be a visitor at the Windfall Cottage. One word from Candy: "No!" and even Mitu will stop and await orders.

Dog lovers have always been in the majority in Carmel and here come a couple who wish to be counted.

Marjorie and William Farner, who make their home at Torres and First Streets, believe that if you seriously desire making a host of friends and influencing a lot of people in your neighborhood then there is no better aid in this life than owning an affectionate, friendly, clowning French Poodle like their own Jojo.

Jojo is a standard, all black with one exception. He has one small white tuft on his brisket which reminds his master of "ties and tails."

"I never go walking with him without being surrounded by Jojo's admiring friends, who incidentally become my friends too, but only incidentally," says Bill. "Jojo has really made me feel 'at home' in my own village.

"Jojo's affection knows no bounds. Down at the office he tickles the holy thunder out of Margaret Poole when he acts like a Pomeranian and jumps into any and all unsuspecting laps."

If you really want to feel you are accepted by friend dog, just get in the way of Amber, one large and lovable Great Dane belonging to Mrs. Margaret Miller whose home is on Monte Verde at Fourteenth Streets.

Amber, whose full name is amber Van Loleland, knows she is human. She watches humans and tries to do what they do every time. Isn't she about their size? When she sits down, for instance, it seems the most natural thing in the world for her to back up to a chair or sofa and sit, as any human dog should, with four feet left squarely on the floor.

Dr. Joseph Marasco tells that on a recent visit to see Amber, Mrs. Miller invited him into the living room and asked the doctor to take a seat on the sofa. Mrs. Miller took a chair facing and while they discussed Amber's well-being, the Great Dane nonchalantly ambled around the room in her loose-jointed pony gait, taking in their conversation about her. Finally, Amber became tired. She backed up on the doctor and quietly sat herself in his lap.

Amber has one other charming mannerism unique in dogdom. Like Candy's Siamese cat, Thai, Amber also is her mistress' alarmclock and can tell time by the sun. When the Dane thinks it is time for Mrs. Miller to arise and shine, she goes to the bedroom. She does not bark . . . nothing so crude . . . she just sneezes, once, very politely but firmly, says Mrs. Miller, who then gets up.

MIRROR WRITING

Spotted coils in the milkweed shadows
Hold folding twin pens to write in dots.
A hurricane may write with a brown roof,
And a river inscribes with turgid lips.
The tall elm indents with its long toes,
And who knows what a scented handkerchief may say?
The white helmet shell tells of blue waters,
And a robin's blood speaks of cruel lead.
Each face I meet holds calligraphy,
Lines of elegance, sorrows, love, deceit;
Hopes stamped and withdrawn, shiftings,
Sunrises, winters, ebon moments, campaigns,
And on each parchment an "I am you",
—Mirror writing of the earth.

SONGS OF THE BAY

The bay of Monterey lies blue and flutters
Beneath the rocking weight of fishing boats
That grinning, preen for painters on the beach
Boats poised as peacocks, rigged as taut as toys
All green and red and white and singing out of reach.

Their song goes shorewards to the once proud sea—
Green houses standing yellow now from wind
And sunscar. Close and gently comes a purr
Low and lithe within the yellow grass—
A grey cat black before the seawind seared its fur.

Carried purring back to sea, the song
Subdues the smell of fish and seaweed and
The sound of water folding in again
To water, as an old man stoops and scoops
A pailfull from his rowboat ridden in the rain.

—H. J. PLUMMER

THE RAGPICKER

Yes,
I am bitter.
I am growing old.
When has my voice been heard
Above the beat of drums,
The whine of engines,
The thoughtless chatter of my fellows?
Oh I can foresee the end;
Shambling,
Spent,
Poking about among the rubble of youth.
And I know what I will find there too;
Soiled and worn,
But still intact
And unmistakably my own:
Rugged,
Dogged,
Hope.

Chinin De Triana Flamenco Concert Saturday Evening

Chinin de Triana will bring the ancient and fiery art of the Spanish gypsies to Sunset Auditorium Saturday night for a single concert appearance.

Senor de Triana, a former Jose Greco Company star and concert partner of Vicente Escuedero, has recently formed his own intimate concert troupe. Appearing with the young Spaniard will be another former Greco associate, Loreta Garcia, and former Ballet Espagnol lead guitarist, Pepe del Monte.

Besides his many concerts the diminutive flamenco artist is familiar to audiences through major network television appearances.

Senor de Triana was brought to this country by Jose Greco with whom he toured for three seasons, and has won wide critical acclaim on this side of the Atlantic. Robert Coleman of the New York Daily News says, ". . . you haven't heard Ole's shouted with such fervor at Carnegie Hall in recent semesters as those that welcomed every appearance of Chinin de Triana." Walter Sorell of Dance Magazine says, "Senor de Triana is a great singer with a winning stage personality." Popular minded "Variety" says, "Chinin de Triana's vocals are electrifying." The New York Times simply terms him "The world's greatest Flamenco singer."

Saturday night Senor de Triana will sing La Tani, a number which has attained extraordinary popularity on his television concerts. Loreta Garcia will be featured in Zapateado, a virtuoso exercise in footwork, rhythm and technique. She will also appear in Cuadro Flamenco which concludes with Bulerias, a "jam session" of improvised song, dance and guitar work in spontaneous abandoned gypsy style with sly humor.

Sallie E. Strauss

Mrs. Sallie E. Strauss, widow of Lawrence Strauss, died on Monday in Sunnyvale after a prolonged illness. She was 74 years old.

Mrs. Strauss was born in New York City on January 10, 1887. She came to live in Carmel permanently ten years ago with her husband, a singer who had maintained a voice studio in San Francisco for 50 years. At that time they built a home on San Carlos Street between Thirteenth Avenue and Santa Lucia Street in which Mrs. Strauss continued to live following the death of Mr. Strauss in 1954.

Interested in the musical life of Carmel, before moving here Mrs. Strauss came with Mr. Strauss to attend the Bach Festival each summer. She was a member of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmel.

Survivors include a son, Leon L. Strauss of Redwood City; a daughter, Mrs. Annette S. Fuhrman of Palo Alto; two sisters, Mrs. Therese E. Jelenko of Carmel and Mrs. Violet E. Neuenberg of San Francisco; six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Private services were held on Tuesday in Redwood City. Mrs. Sybil Hone, Christian Science Reader, conducted the service. Inurnment was in Cypress Lawn Memorial Park in Colma.

Those wishing to honor the memory of Mrs. Strauss are requested by members of her family to do so in the form of donations to the Carmel Foundation, Box 3424, Carmel, or Valentine Residence Inc., 914 Ruth Avenue, Belmont.

Mr. and Mrs. David Gray of Carmel are seen, above, on a visit to Eton College in Buckinghamshire, England. They included the famous public school on a tour which also took them to Windsor Castle and Hampton Court. Founded in 1440 for the free education of 70 scholars by Henry VI, Eton College is now one of the world's most exclusive boys' schools. Students wear formal morning dress, including silk toppers, in memory of George III.

Music On The Peninsula

The first presentation of the Carmel Arts Commission's free entertainments opened on Sunday afternoon at the Forest Theater before a packed audience.

City Clerk Larry Rose was master of ceremonies and in his opening address stressed the informal and casual aspects of the program against a background of magnificent natural scenery which he called "the grandest in any part of the world." He then introduced Carmel's Mayor Frank Putnam, who gave a tribute to Father's Day by introducing the founding father of the Forest Theater, Herbert Heron. The program opened with singing of the Star Spangled Banner by dramatic soprano, Margaret White, accompanied by Camille Oleata.

The Joyce Kephart Folk Dancers followed with six folk dances. The brilliant costumes made an inspiring and colorful pitcure on the new stage. There were two dances from Portugal and one each from Russia, Greece, Scotland and Serbia.

An intermission followed with the audience strolling through the grounds to look at the archery exhibit which was under the direction of Bruce Kendall, assisted by Don Morton and Bob Rose, and at the silk screen exhibit of Patricia Hall, and to patronize the refreshment bar staffed by members of the Carmel Youth Center. Margaret White continued the program by singing The Star by Rogers, Summertime from Porgy and Bess, and My Hero from the Chocolate Soldier, accompanied by Camille Oleata. She then sang a duet from The Marriage of Figaro by Mozart with Ted Cross, local bass-baritone.

Mr. Cross sang Invictus by Huhn, Some Enchanted Evening from South Pacific, and Ole Man River by Jerome Kern. Both Miss White's and Mr. Cross' voices blended beautifully with the Forest Theater's open air acoustics, and they both received enthusiastic applause, including their accompanist, Camille Oleata.

The Joyce Kephart dancers then gave a group of dances from Mexico. All of the music for the folk dances was furnished by Stereo Sound from off stage, directed by Glenn Kearns of the Art Commission. The first of the free Sunday afternoons at the Forest Theater was brought to a resounding close with the audience giving a standing ovation. —Ora Fallis.

William Corbet Jones, a first-rate pianist, was heard last Sunday as Musica Viva's eleventh concert of the series at the Steinbeck, under direction of Axel Duwe. His performance of Brahms, Ravel, Schubert and Chopin revealed Jones a musician of great sensitivity, yet with power unlimited when needed. His liquid, full and flowing legato and fine comprehension of phrase and modulation, together with that overall feeling and spiritual perception belonging to the best conductors reminded one of the playing of the great Joseph Hoffman, than whom none has ever shown greater command of keyboard manipulation and piano instrumentation. It is not surprising, therefore, that Jones has received the Alfred Hertz Memorial Scholarship of the University of California for three consecutive years and has been five times soloist with the San Francisco Orchestra. His quiet and modest bearing also adds to his stature.

He immediately captured the audience with the Brahms Rhapsody in E flat, followed by the seldom heard posthumous Schubert Sonata in B flat. The four movements of this gave him every kind of technical and tonal test, met by commanding surety which was also present in the Ravel Sarabande and two Chopin numbers, a Mazurka in C sharp minor and Polonaise in A flat major. Where many today mutilate Chopin scores with upset accents and phrasings, Jones treated them as the composer wrote them, bringing out the balance and beauty of the conceptions. It was really Chopin and a joy to hear. In response to vigorous recalls the artist added a Scarlatti Sonata and Etude Tableau by Rachmaninoff, and then was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Blair in Carmel Highlands where a number of his audience were able to meet and congratulate him personally.

Next Sunday a Gala Operatic Concert from the San Francisco Conservatory Opera Workshop will present two American premieres—The Poor Sailor by Darius Milhaud and Sancta Susanna by Paul Hindemith, and should drew a full house.

The operas will be performed in the Pacific Grove High School instead of the Steinbeck as being larger and more adaptable to the

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The need to follow Christ Jesus' example by healing the sick compassionately through prayer will be stressed at Christian Science churches Sunday.

Scriptural readings in the Lesson-Sermon on "Christian Science" will include (Matthew 9): "And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people. But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd."

A correlative selection to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (p. 37): "It is possible,—yea, it is the duty and privilege of every child, man, and woman,—to follow in some degree the example of the Master by the demonstration of Truth and Life, of health and holiness."

The Golden Text is from Revelation (12): "Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ."

Mrs. Dredge Back From Hawaii

Mrs. Armiger G. Dredge arrived in San Francisco on the Lurline Sunday morning after three and a half months in the Hawaiian Islands. She visited friends and relatives on Oahu, spent two months on Kauai, a week each on Maui and Hawaii. In Honolulu she stayed in a hotel on Waikiki Beach and while on Kauai attended the opening of a new luxurious hotel in the north shore mountains of Hanalei Valley which has a trolley system to take guests down to the coast. On board ship she was made a member of the Matson Line Mariners Club in honor of her seventh trip to the Islands since World War II.

White flowers decorated Carmel Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon when Deanna Jane Dinkin of Carmel and James Franklin Hicks of Carmel Valley exchanged wedding vows in a 2:00 o'clock ceremony solemnized by Chaplain George Markle.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Leon Warren Dinkin of San Francisco. Crystal and seed pearl embroidery outlined the boat neckline of her white peau de faille gown which had a fitted bodice with elbow length sleeves and an inverted bell skirt extending in back into a chapel train. A large French silk white rose held her fingertip veil in place and she carried a nosegay bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Her attendants were her sister, Tina Dimitri Dinkin, maid of honor, and Phyllis Clive Benson of San Francisco, Nedra Joanne Merrick of Pleasanton and Mrs. John Van Voorhis of San Francisco. They were dressed alike in full-skirted blue chiffon frocks with cummerbund sashes and short-sleeved boat-necked bodices. Their green shoes matched their crowns of velvet ivy leaves, made by the bride, and they carried nosegay bouquets of white Esther Reid daisies bordered with ivy leaves.

William T. Hicks, the bridegroom's brother, was best man and ushers were Daniel Sanders of Tehachapi, James Stearns of Hutchinson, Minnesota, John K. Mortenson of Carmel Valley and Robert Handin of Alhambra.

Mrs. Edith Culbert Dinkin of Carmel, the bride's mother, attended the marriage in a jade brocade suit with beige accessories.

Mrs. Claude A. Hicks, the bridegroom's mother, wore a pearl-trimmed blue lace dress with white accessories.

The wedding reception immediately after the ceremony was held in the garden at the home of the bridegroom's parents in Carmel Valley.

The bridal couple received standing before a waterfall which cascaded into a pool. White gladioli in full bloom filled the garden beds surrounding the lawn. The same flowers with white stock and daisies were used for table decorations and the three-tiered wedding cake was placed on a table covered by an embroidered white organdy cloth belonging to the bride's grandmother, Mrs. E. O. Burgess of Oakland who was present at the wedding. The knife used by the bride and bridegroom to cut their wedding cake originally belonged to the bride's great-grandmother, Mrs. Addie L. Mosher of Oakland, a native Californian.

The bride changed to a blue tweed suit and white accessories before leaving on a honeymoon with her husband. They will live in Oakland when they return.

The bride received her high school education in Walnut Creek then attended Monterey Peninsula College and now has one more year of studies at San Francisco State College before graduating as an education and history major.

Her husband, a Carmel High School graduate, continued his education at Monterey Peninsula College and is now a student in the school of optometry at the University of California.

scenery of the operas, The Unfortunate Sailor by Darius Milhaud, L' Enfant Prodigue by Claud Debussy, and Sancta Suzanna, Paul Hindemith; the first two to be sung in English and the third in French. The story of the Unfortunate Sailor was supposedly taken by librettist Cocteau from police records of a French port town. All three operas had enthusiastic reception by the San Francisco critics for their daring and uniqueness, otherwise the Milhaud and Hindemith have had no other production in the United States. The same cast will perform in Pacific Grove. As this Gala event is free to subscribers of Musica Viva Concerts only a limited number of single seats are available.

The National Symphony League holds its annual Convention in Philadelphia this week at which our own Conductor Ronald Ondrejka will be present and return in time for the National Conductors' and Composers' Workshop at Asilomar starting on June 29 for two weeks. At this workshop we hope there will be days for the public as heretofore.

Many will attend summer sessions at colleges and universities in this country and abroad. Some will travel in Europe and Mexico, others explore the United States or visit relatives on the West Coast and in California. Camping ranks high in teachers' summer plans. Military service is included, also housebuilding, television installation and servicing, and just staying at home and relaxing.

Joe Broadman, art teacher at Sunset School, will build a living room addition on his home in Lower Carmel Valley to accommodate traveling folksong singers, and their sleeping bags if they wish overnight shelter.

Tom Cloud will stay in Carmel and attend evening classes at Monterey Peninsula College. During the latter part of the summer he will go to the Bay Area to take special lessons on sense perceptions and appreciation from Luz Alba, ex-director of the Mexican National Theatre now conducting a theatre school in San Francisco.

Jack Douglas will be in Barstow this summer working for his father-in-law installing and servicing television sets. Gordon Gartz plans to work most of the summer. Miss Sally McPhail will attend the Instituto in San Miguel, Guanajuato, Mexico, to study Spanish, history and art.

Wes McWilliams, Sunset boys' physical education instructor, will go to summer school at Fresno State College. Mrs. Willie Belle Mason's summer plans are to attend the School Mathematics Study Group workshop at Monterey High School, July 31 to August 11. Neil Smith will take "a great big trip" by motor around the West. Mrs. Sarah Sproull will begin a sabbatical year of study at San Francisco State College.

Mrs. Thelma Stohr will finish cataloging the Sunset School library, also take a trip to some place of interest on the West Coast. Mrs. Beatrice Wiegman will stay in Carmel with her daughter, Wendy, just returned from her first year at Stephens College in Missouri, also visit her four married children and her grandchildren in other parts of California. Kenneth Wiese will teach an arts and crafts course in Carmel and "build my house on my lot."

Yates Protests $101,300 Hike In New School Budget

the "rehash." Last night was his and Ted Fehring's final board meeting. Neither ran for re-election and July's meeting will see the seating of two new members, Clayton Neill, Jr., and Dr. Robert Newton.

Actually the preliminary budget is $20,000 over expected tax revenue, Greenfield told the board. He'd worked on the basis of the assessor's office tip of $5 million dollar increase in assessed valuation of property within Carmel City limits. Yesterday morning, the estimate was pared down to $4 million and a half, which represents about $20,000 less tax revenue, bad news for the school board, but good news for the Carmel taxpayer, as one of them in the audience murmured plaintively.

Carmel district will get $25,000 if the federal aid bill passes, said Greenfield, and this will replace the $20,000; meanwhile, undistributed reserve will take care of it.

This highly optimistic view the board allowed to pass without comment.

The usual salary increases, increase in district contribution to social benefits, and the interesting item "other expenses" which appears nine times in the budget, accounts for the increase in next year's cost of operation.

NEW OFFICERS INSTALLED

New officers of Court Carmel Mission, Catholic Daughters of America, were installed last night in ceremonies held in Crespi Hall at Carmel Mission Basilica. They are: Mary Burton, grand regent; Wilhelmina Higby, vice grand regent; Nancy d'Angelo, prophetess; Betty Wahl, lecturer; Caridad Gonzales, financial secretary; Mai McGrury, treasurer; Edna Collingwood, historian; Ora Fallis, monitor and organist; Lupe Ramos, sentinel; Mamie Hagen, Barbara Narvaez, Alice Shannon, Marie Kruse, Rosalie Machado and Regina Gomez, trustees.

A buffet dinner for members and officers followed the installation.

POLICE COLUMN

The Carmel police department enjoyed a characteristic week. Yesterday is a sample:

Mrs. Kermit Carlson of Minnesota reported that she had lost a sleeping bag from her car. Mrs. William J. Mulchy of Atherton told the police she had dropped a gold and pearl link bracelet somewhere about town.

James H. Rutledge, on patrol duty, spotted a Work Lumber truck making a delivery on Ocean Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln and reported it for file 41646. This concerns a continuing row between the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea and the Work Lumber Company about whether or not the latter should comply with the city business license ordinance as it applies to out of town companies making deliveries in the city.

Arienne Dufour reported that the door key she hides outside of her house, Torres and Eighth, was gone when she returned, and the back door open. Police checked but nothing was missing, and Mrs. Dufour got a new lock.

Clyde R. Klaumann (young Clyde to distinguish him from Chief of Police Clyde) responding to a report of "kids throwing trash on the city tennis courts," found that the trash was lemon peels. He had the kids pick them up and put them in the trash can. "I gave them a very good talking to. They stated they wouldn't do it again," young Clyde reported on the "yellow card" for the files. These kids and others of that age group had better watch out this summer. When school starts this fall Young Clyde will teach sixth grade at River School, another Carmel High School graduate to stay away from home only long enough to qualify in college to teach in the Carmel school system. This makes everybody happy.

Arthur McEwen phoned that a friend of his thought someone was shooting quail in the San Antonio and Fourth Street neighborhood, but he figured it was firecrackers. Police were unable to locate anyone with either gun or firecrackers.

The evening rounded off with a note of charm. At 5:57 o'clock three little girls came into the police station to report themselves lost. They knew where they were staying but couldn't find it. When police took them there, they found that the parents had gone to dinner and would be back at 7:00 o'clock. An eleven-year-old girl said she would take care of the others.

Parents phoned later to thank the police.

So it went on Wednesday, following the pattern of the earlier part of the week: people losing things, having fender skirmishes, getting over-time parking tickets. Nobody was dog-bitten this week. The only dog event involved a pooch's retiring into a pipe-type culvert and refusing to come out until urged by a water jet from a garden hose.

Cathay Enterprise Corporation. Head office of the firm is in Taipei, Formosa, but there is a branch office in Los Angeles. CATEC, Formosa, is the cable address of the firm, which Mr. Adams didn't use for elucidation of his problem. Lee Chen of Pacific Grove sent in the plans for the business he will operate.

Sally Campbell received the first scholarship awarded by the Carmel High School Permanent Scholarship Fund during graduation exercises last Friday evening in King Hall. She also won one of the nine P-TA-Girls' League Carnival scholarships announced the same evening.

P-TA-Girls' League scholarships also went to Gay Antoncich, Cornelia Leib, Pat Rhodes, Gudny Eide, Sharon Predmore, Gwen Meyer, Karen Freitag and Gerald Taylor, who also won the J. O. Handley, Carmel Builders Supply scholarship.

Doyle Clayton was recipient of the Carmel Kiwanis Club Scholarship. Cornelia Leib won a Gold C award as the outstanding member of the Class of 1961 in scholastics, athletics and service to the school.

Assemblyman Glen Coolidge of Santa Cruz County and Assemblymal Alan Pattee, Monterey County, will discuss the 1961 legislative assembly and reapportionment at a meeting sponsored by the Carmel Republican Women's Club on Tuesday evening, 8:00 o'clock, at the USO. There will be a question period following the discussions. Coffee will be served after the meeting. The public is invited to attend.

Herb Miller's Brass Band will play for this week end's Forest Theater Sunday. Also on the stage program will be ballet dancing by pupils of Kyra Ivanovsky.

Doris Ormsby will demonstrate linoleum block making and printing; Frank Bell, president of the Carmel Craft Guild, lapidary work, in the offstage part of the program.

Larry Rose will be master of ceremonies for the affair starting at 1:30 o'clock. There is no admission charge. Refreshments will be sold by members of the Carmel Youth Center. Persons are free to come and go any time after the theater opens until it closes at 4:00 o'clock.

Mrs. Anna Kohner is to be Woods and Carmelo principal next year, with Peter Glod teaching-vice principal, the school board decided last night. Both are teachers in the district, known and liked.

The board ratified the employment of nine new teachers: Mary Anderson, seventh and eighth grade, Tularcitos; Laura Carmany, home arts, high school, who will replace Marilyn Matthew, who has quit to get married; Hans-Waldemar Crone, Latin and German, high school; Wesley McWilliams, boys' physical education, seventh grade science and math., Sunset; Marvin Patterson, seventh and eighth grade, math., Tularcitos; Mrs. Alice Powell, second and third grades, Woods; Naomi Reddert, sixth grade, Tularcitos; Constance Wagner, third grade, Carmelo; Mrs. Katherine Holgren, remedial reading, Sunset and other primary schools.
